§ 1 scope

- (1) The user rules apply to all communication systems connected to the WHZ communication network. It applies to all users, system operators and service providers regardless of their membership status at the WHZ.
- (2) The user rules regulate:
 - 1. access for users to the information, communication and data processing services offered in the WHZ communication network;
 - 2. the rights and obligations of users;
 - 3. the tasks, rights and obligations of the ZKI as a system operator and service provider towards the users

§ 3 service providers

Service providers are:

- 1. the ZKI for all basic IT supply services. These include: central user administration including e-mail address management, provision of central storage resources, backup of data files, software provision, operation of various central servers;
- 2. the university library with its various information services in electronic form;
- 3. the rectorate and the central administration with various information services in electronic form;
- 4. all faculties and central institutions that provide or offer information or services in electronic form;
- 5. student representatives, institutions outside the WHZ and sponsoring institutions and associations after a successful application procedure according to § 5 by the ZKI.

Service providers according to § 3 para. 2 to 5 are providers, regardless of where the associated server is located. If this server is located in the ZKI, it is also administered by the ZKI. If the server is located at the service provider, the ZKI must be notified of this in writing in advance. The ZKI as the operator of the communication network of the WHZ has the right of objection and the right to issue technical instructions. The respective service provider is legally responsible for the content of the services.

§ 5 duties of the users

- (1) The user is obliged to use the available facilities, resources and consumables responsibly and economically. The user is also obliged to refrain from impairments of the operation, as far as they are foreseeable, and to avoid everything that can cause damage to the DP system or to other users.
- (2) The user must refrain from any kind of misuse of the data processing systems. In particular, he is obliged to actively cooperate in maintaining security in the communication network. This includes in particular:
 - protect access to DP resources through appropriate procedures and measures;
 - take precautions to prevent unauthorized third parties from accessing the resources;
 - to report any security risks and vulnerabilities of which it becomes aware to the ZKI without delay.
- (3) The user is fully responsible for his or her data and for all actions performed under his or her user ID, even if these actions are performed by a third party to whom the user has culpably granted access in violation of the obligations arising from these regulations. The user is liable for all damages caused to the university by gross negligence and indemnifies the university from any resulting claims for damages by third parties.

data processing (DP) = Datenverarbeitung (DV)

- (4) The user is further obliged:
 - comply with the legal regulations when using the resources;
 - to inform themselves about the conditions of use of the resources and to observe these conditions.
 - provided software may, unless expressly permitted, neither be copied nor passed on;
 - to comply with the DFN- Association usage regulations for the interaction of users of the DFN communication services of 16.05.1994 (Annex 2). In particular, it must be ensured that access to the scientific network and thus to the Internet may only be used for purposes that are in line with the tasks of a state university and are not of a commercial nature.
 - to refrain from actions on the net that are of a political nature
 - refrain from actions that interfere with other users in the performance of their official and student duties.
- (5) It is expressly noted that the following conduct in particular is a criminal offense under the Act:
 - exploring other people's passwords, spying on data,
 - unauthorized modification, deletion, suppression or rendering unusable of data,
 - computer sabotage and computer fraud,
 - the dissemination of propaganda material by unconstitutional organizations or racist ideas,
 - the distribution of pornography on the net,
 - insult and defamation.

- (6) The user is obliged to protect the personal rights and copyrights of third parties.
- (7) The user must refrain from any actions that may damage the reputation of the university internally or externally.
- (8) If a user or a system operator intends to offer services pursuant to § 2 (2), he shall be deemed equivalent to a service provider pursuant to § 3. The services offered by him must be notified in writing to the ZKI in advance. The ZKI, as the operator of the WHZ communications network, has the right to object and the right to issue technical instructions.
- (9) When using online services that result in commercial actions within the scope of recognized service duties, the user must inform the responsible faculty or university administration prior to registration to ensure that the costs incurred are allocated to the cost center.

If abuses become more frequent, access to the networks will no longer be as free as it is today but will be associated with formal hurdles (e.g. proof of purpose or qualification)!

There is also the fear of a loss of generally accessible services.
